

Disclaimer

Gyeszly Prangner, PLLC makes this website available to the public for informational purposes only. The information and any materials contained herein are not guaranteed to be complete or up-to-date, and should not be construed as legal advice. Visitors are encouraged to seek the advice of competent counsel in dealing with matters having legal consequences.

No attorney-client relationship is intended or implied by the use of this website, by interaction by the firm, one of its attorneys, or other employees on the internet or social media outlets, or by an inquiry directed to the firm, one of its attorneys, or other employees, unless such interaction, inquiry, or contact results in the firm being formally engaged pursuant to an explicit agreement with a client.

No information you regard as confidential or privileged should be sent to Gyeszly Prangner, PLLC before we agree to represent you. Failure to heed this warning may result in compromising the confidentiality of such information. No assurances can be made that electronic messages will only be viewed by the intended recipient.

By accessing or using this website, interacting with the firm, one of its attorneys, or other employees on the internet or social media, or by sending us an e-mail, you confirm your understanding of this notice.

This web site is not intended to be advertising, but portions of it may be considered as such under the rules of some states.

Unless otherwise indicated, attorneys listed in this web site are not certified by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization.